

Leave nothing behind

Tackling our multiple crises by centring nature & people in decision-making

Centering people in decision-making on the Green and Just Transition is pivotal for building sustainable and resilient solutions and democracies. This event will focus on innovative aspects for inclusive participation, in times of artificial intelligence, conflict, climate change, and the ascent of right-wing populism. Building on evidence from REAL DEAL, an EU research project consisting of civil society organisations and academia working around the European Green Deal. Inviting civil society, Academia, Intergovernmental Agencies and Member States to engage in a cross-regional dialogue on deliberative democracies that leaves no species behind.

Join us for discussions around participation and:

- Legal environment
- How to build new narratives, for the Green and Just Transition that counter false and harmful ones?
- What are barriers for participation and how do we ensure that no one and nothing is left behind? We will explore examples of successful participatory processes such as the “Voice of nature”, climate assemblies and testing of deliberative democracy in EU countries.
